FROM THE RABBI'S STUDY.

F A I G E , T H E F A W N

Deep in the forest, there was a family of deer. They were a wonderful, joyous family. Boruch, the buck, and Dassie, the doe, were the parents of many children, many little deer. They took their responsibilities as parents very seriously. They knew that the most important thing that they could convey to their children was the skill of survival, and that while the deer wasn't very strong and couldn't fight off larger animals like the lion, the deer could be very swift and could outrun the lion. Therefore, from the time that their children were very young they tried to teach them to run fast. They made up games that involved running and they did all sorts of activities that involved running to make sure that their children, without feeling overburdened, would learn how to run fast. Indeed, all of their children did learn how to run fast except for Faige, the fawn. Faige, you see, felt put upon by this whole business of having to learn how to run fast. Faige said to herself, "It's not fair; it's just not fair that I should have to learn how to run fast. There have got to be better ways to escape the lion." And so, Faige, instead of participating in all of the other activities to learn how to run fast would go off on her own seeking different ways to escape. Indeed, one day Faige saw a snake being chased by a rodent. She saw the snake slither quickly into the underbrush and escape. Faige said to herself, "Why that is a wonderful way to escape." So Faige the fawn decided that she, too, was going to learn how to slither. She got down on her stomach and she began to practice. Day after day and week after week Faige the fawn would be down there on the ground practicing slithering into the underbrush.

Time passed and one day Faige saw a kangaroo. She saw another animal chasing the kangaroo and the kangaroo getting back on its rear legs and leaping long distances to escape. Faige the fawn said to herself, "My goodness, that is a wonderful way to escape. I can do that also." So Faige the fawn began to practice leaping. Well, it was very clumsy for Faige the fawn to do that. But, nevertheless, she worked hard at it. She had worked hard to learn how to slither. She wouldn't learn how to run. Now she worked hard at learning how to leap great distances, but she wouldn't learn how to run.

After a while Faige the fawn saw a monkey being chased by another animal. The monkey ran directly over to a tree and grabbed the tree around with all four legs and climbed rapidly right up into the top bushes of the tree and escaped. Faige the fawn said to herself, "My goodness, that is the most wonderful way to escape. I can do that too." So Faige the fawn began to practice climbing trees. It was very cumbersome for Faige to get up and even get all four legs around the tree, but she was insistent, and she was determined. Faige the fawn practiced climbing the tree. She wouldn't learn how to run fast, but she practiced climbing trees.

Time passed, and then one day in the forest the rumor spread through. Someone said, "The lion is coming." Suddenly all of the deer began to run to escape from the lion. Faige got down on her belly and began to slither into the underbrush, and from behind her she heard more persistent voices calling, "The lion is coming." Off in the distance she could already see her family which had run very far away. So Faige began to leap as well as she could. The sound of the lion got closer, and her family appeared smaller and smaller in the distance. Finally, Faige realized that she wasn't getting very far at all and that the lion was catching up with her. So she quickly rushed over to the nearest tree, wrapped all four of her legs around the tree and began to try climbing up the tree. As she began climbing up the tree she turned back and saw the lion almost having caught up with her and, off in the great distance, her family having escaped by running. Faige the fawn said to herself, "If only I had perfected the gift which God had given to me instead of attempting to imitate everyone else around me. If only I had," Faige thought. This was the last thought that Faige the fawn had as the lion sank his claws into her back.

LSS 1988 SOLIDARITY MISSION TO ISRAEL under the dynamic leadership of Rabbi Ephraim Buchwald, October 26 - November 10, 1988.

Price: $1988 per person based on double occupancy includes 5-star hotels, full Israeli breakfast daily and additional meals. Shabbat in Efrat marking the 5th anniversary of Rav Riskin's aliyah. Meetings with notable personalities. FOR MORE INFO CALL LSS AT 874-6100.

SUMMER ON THE WEST SIDE

This past July a group of teenagers from Atlanta, enroute to Crown Heights, were instructed by their intended Lubavitch hosts to stop at LSS, as they would not make it to their destination before Shabbat. They were discovered by the unassuming late minyonnaires minutes later and, as LSS members were wont to come through...all of the 13 young people were spoken for immediately and given meals and hospitality through Shabbat.

If you were there, thank you from the rest of us for showing the young people from Atlanta the kind of community we all aspire to being.

WE TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO WELCOME
MR. KENNETH WAGNER
AS OUR NEW EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Happy New Year! I hope you spent a pleasant and productive Summer and had some relief from the record-breaking heat. Lincoln Square Synagogue is welcoming 5749 with the "Teshuvah Campaign," a month of focus on Teshuvah, Tefilah and Tzedakah as preparation for, and expression of, the Elul/Tishrei period.

All of our staff members have combined, under our Rabbi's leadership, to put together a remarkable program of lectures, workshops and events to focus on the overriding theme of these "Days of Awe."

For the Tzedakah aspect of your preparations for Yom Kippur, I urge that your annual maintenance contribution to LSS be high on the list and overly generous. Elliot Falk and Steven Spira have accepted the leadership of this year's campaign and are mobilizing for the task of raising over $200,000.

Our shul has a budget of more than $1,500,000. One of the things I often hear is that we are spending too much money and are too much of a "national Shul." When that comment was made, as a complaint, at a recent Board meeting I was impressed by the reply offered by Allan Leicht. He commented that the reason we are perceived as a national institution is that our activities and services to members are nationally recognized as setting standards for others to emulate. I deeply appreciated that comment because I find it frustrating that our daily attempts to find innovative, creative ways to serve the educational and spiritual needs of the over 1,800 people who are members of this congregation are often minimized.

Without a doubt it takes a great deal of money to adequately serve all those who belong to this Synagogue. Conversely, if every single member gave even moderately to the Yom Kippur appeal, our goal would be surpassed easily. Our goal must be 100% involvement; 100% of our membership supporting the maintenance expense of our beloved congregation. We are here 365 days a year for our members; help us continue to serve you and make a generous commitment on Yom Kippur

. I write this column just a few days after the tragic death of Marshall Papier at the age of 56. Marshall had just been elected to our Board of Trustees and had recently agreed to head a task force to explore new sources of revenue for the Synagogue. His love of LSS was palpable and he was brimming with ideas for new ways of fund raising. He was so enthusiastic, so vital, so encouraging, so special. All of our anticipated success in fund raising in the upcoming year will be dedicated to him, and our sincerest hopes for condolence and healing go out to Joan, Neil, Lee, David and Alan.

I will end the column with a quote from the eulogy that Rabbi Riskin wrote and that I was privileged to deliver at Marshall's funeral: "Our Sages teach us that there are rare individuals in every generation who are taken to God before their time in order to bring forgiveness to the entire Jewish nation."

This is the month of Elul when we seek forgiveness from God, and Marshall was one of the most lovable human beings I have ever known, whose smile reached out to everyone, and who truly wished to bring happiness and redemption to all the world. I can only feel that Marshall is now standing before God, pleading the case of all of the orphans, of all of the unfortunates, and insisting that redemption come soon. If anyone can convince the Almighty, Marshall can do it. May his memory forever serve as a blessing to those of us who loved him and who will forever miss him."

LSS AS A HOUSE OF PRAYER

[The following are some excerpts from Rabbi Moshe Kahn's presentation during the June symposium, The Future of LSS: Body and Soul.]

One of a synagogue's primary functions is to give people the opportunity for tefila betzibur, communal prayer. How well are we doing with regard to davening? Is ours a meaningful davening? Are we behaving properly in shul?

I'd like to begin by mentioning a halacha that Rav Chaim Brisker developed in his book of chidushim, insights, on the Rambam's Mishneh Torah. Rav Chaim says there are two basic kavanot, intentions, we must have when we daven. First, we must realize before whom we are standing. Second, we must try to understand what we are saying, the concepts if not the words.

When do people come to shul? At the time of Barechu, how many empty seats are there? (I can tell you at the Shabbos hashkama minyan there are quite a few.) Many people come after Barechu. Others arrive after Shemoneh Esrei. Some come during and even after Kri'as Hatorah, Torah reading. Some arrive before, during or even after Musaf. Why are people coming to Shul so late? Now, I'm not naive; I realize other motives exist, and that's a wonderful part of LSS—that people can meet. However, I'd like to think there's a dual motive, and that one of them is to daven. I can hardly imagine that people can daven when they walk in so late. Do they know what to do? Do they know what to say? Do they try to catch up with the davening or do they just pick up where the chazan is at that point? To pray to God—if we truly believe that's what we're doing—it's all right to come late? What kind of davening is that?

How much talking goes on during davening? Everybody likes to talk, and we all talk, and Jews may be notorious for talking. But there's a place and a time for talking.

Usually when everyone has finished the Shemoneh Esrei the talking begins. How many times has the rabbi had to stop the chazan during Chazaras Hashatz and wait for quiet? During Kri'as Hatorah and between aliyas people are talking. They are also talking during the recital of the Haftarah, during the recital of Barechu that starts each aliyah and during the recital of Kaddish.

Are people answering to "amen, y'hei shmei rabba"? Some do, some don't. Either people are talking or they're just not paying attention to it. Aren't these things important? Do you know what the Gemara says? It says the world exists because of the people who say "y'hei shmei rabba."

Where is everyone during the week? Not in shul—only a very small number are there. Are we implying that davening on Shabbos morning is more important than on Tuesday morning? We have no right to make such value judgments. I hope that everyone davens at home, but what about tefila betzibur?

I feel the examples I've just given are indicative of a problem in our community: people seem to lack the proper sensitivity to tefila. There is no quick solution, but this has to be addressed. Our rabbis have to speak about it often—not just in classes, but from the pulpit. Tefila is important in our lives; it has sustained us for thousands of years and, God willing, it will continue to sustain us. People have to find a need for tefila. There's got to be an enthusiasm, an excitement about tefila and tefila betzibur to make prayer as meaningful as it can and should be. The kavana, the feeling, is missing. We must overcome this obstacle.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Covenant House, a nonprofit international child care agency dedicated to providing services to runaway and homeless youths, has established a toll-free, nationwide 24-hours-a-day, 7-days-a-week crisis line. The hotline, called Nineline, is a preventive program for potential runaways and their families, as well as providing crisis intervention and information and referral for youth and families in critical situations.

Help is needed to staff phones. Telemarketers are also needed to help raise funds for Nineline and other Covenant House projects.

Please contact Nineline Director of Volunteers at 212 330-0400 to volunteer or for more information.

LSS SINGLES COMMITTEE PLANS FALL EVENTS

Since its formation this past Spring, the LSS Singles Committee has brought variety to the meet market at LSS.

Seudot shlishi in June and August hosted 90 people each to late Shabbat dinners featuring divrei Torah by Rabbi Michael Berger and Julie Frank. In a Shabbat afternoon book discussion in early July, advocates came to the defense of Maus, cartoonist Art Spiegelman's controversial depiction of his family's travails during and after the Holocaust.

Sports fans snacked at Jerusalem II and then trucked out to Shea Stadium for an August 30 Met game. A chavura style Shabbat lunch on August 27 turned to the plight of Ethiopian Jewry.

This fall the events will continue. The hurlyburly of Shemini Atzereth/Simchat Torah at LSS will be accented with a meal sponsored by the Singles Committee. In October, a bus will set out on a day trip from LSS bound for a luxurious sylvan spot. The destination? To tell the truth--that's a mystery. Come and find out.

The committee is also planning a monthly volleyball game that will provide a little exercise, refreshment and schmoozing. A theater party promises to bring drama to LSS lives and the days surrounding Thanksgiving are the approximate time for a late fall singles dinner.

The LSS Singles Committee is planning more events than ever before. Keep your eyes on this column and synagogue mailings for more details.

"Shortly after six o'clock on the evening of March 15, 1977, I was abducted by the KGB outside an apartment on Gorky Street in downtown Moscow and brought to Lefortovo Prison."

--Natan Sharansky, Fear No Evil

Natan Sharansky's critically praised memoir, Fear No Evil, a Random House hardcover book, will be the subject of the LSS BOOK DISCUSSION GROUP's first fall meeting: Tuesday, October 11 at 8pm.

All members are invited to attend. West Side Judaica, 2404 Broadway, will grant a 20% discount on Fear No Evil by Natan Sharansky with the presentation of this coupon before the meeting.

*During Daylight Savings Time it is our practice to have 2 services on Friday evening for Mincha and Kabbalat Shabbat. Those who attend the 1st Service should make sure that Shabbat candles be lit no later than 25 minutes after the beginning of the 1st service to coincide with the congregation's recital of the Psalm for Shabbat. Once the congregation says this Psalm, Shabbat has officially begun for the worshippers and their families.

Shabbat concludes Saturday night one hour after the official candle lighting time on Friday afternoon

KASHRUT AROUND TOWN

FREE SERVICES SPONSORED BY OUTREACH DEPARTMENT

This year, as in the past three years, in addition to our free Rosh HaShana abridged service led by Rabbis Reich and Buchwald which attracted one hundred and fifty people, we ran a free Yom Kippur service. Our Yom Kippur free service which was full to capacity with over three hundred people in attendance, was run by Rabbi Kenneth Brander. We also ran six Yizkor services, which serviced three hundred and fifty people conducted by Dr. Peter Abelow and Mr. Jonathan Herlands.

Below are excerpts from some of the letters we have received since Rosh HaShana and Yom Kippur.

Rosh HaShana

... I have just returned home from your Rosh HaShana free service. I must tell you how much I enjoyed the service. I am new to the city and honestly appreciate the gesture ...

Yom Kippur

... I had been traveling through Europe and just arrived in New York without a ticket for a synagogue. The hospitality and warm welcome to all made me feel as if I was back in synagogue with my family. For all the years I have attended synagogue, it was the only time I was asked to open the doors of the ark.
Thank you ...

... You can't imagine my joy when I walked by the synagogue and saw your sign advertising your free service. In the past I attended high holiday services with my parents in Florida. Sadly, my father passed away this February and I was unable to be with my mother. Thanks to you, I felt I was where I belonged ...

... I want to let you know how much we appreciated the free service and the effort that was put into making a meaningful service. A marvelous job was done in teaching those present. My fiancée and I will be joining Lincoln Square Synagogue and will be studying at the Joseph Shapiro Institute, at least one night a week ...

... I am not orthodox, but I can easily relate to your young Rabbi, who did a great job explaining and interpreting the prayers ...
This is outreach in the best sense of the word ...

Yizkor Services

... Thank you for making Yizkor services available for the Yom Kippur Holiday. For those of us who are unaffiliated it meant a great deal to be so welcomed for a service so meaningful ...

Thank you to Rabbis Brander, Buchwald and Reich, Danny Mars, Avery Newmark, Harvey Hoffman, Johnny Herlands, Dr. Peter Abelow, Glenn Richter, Avi Horowitz Paul Holm, Mark Wald, Michael Berger, Rabbi Seymour Baumrind and all of you who helped make the free services a success.
